NOTE

This is an INTERIM GUIDE. The National Forests in the Region are now in the process of performing systematic site evaluations of all developed recreation sites. During 1993 and 1994, all elements of each site will be surveyed using a standardized set of forms based on the Americans With Disabilities Act Accessibility Guidelines (ADAAG). These evaluations will give a uniform interpretation of what is accessible and will address various challenge levels in a standardized way. In contrast, this interim guide is based more on individual interpretations of various guidelines such as the Uniform Federal Accessibility Standards (UFAS), and not a standardized set of forms or definitions. It is probable that interpretations vary from site to site. Future updates of this publication will provide more uniform data.

Introduction

This brochure offers accessibility information about recreation facilities and Forest Service offices in the Southwestern Region. Only sites which have barrier-free facilities have been included. This information is provided for persons who wish to know about such facilities and is intended to help persons with various skill levels to gauge their own capability to use a particular area. We hope this will help provide equal access information to people with sensory and mobility impairments and encourage the independent enjoyment of their national forest facilities.

This information is not intended to suggest that customers could not access other sites or facilities. Forest visitors have diverse interests, backgrounds and abilities; preference between developed or undeveloped sites may have little to do with apparent handicaps. Many recreation sites in the national forests have fairly level terrain and could be accessible to various customers, especially for those who have an assistant or can travel the more rugged areas. Although site accessibility is contingent on characteristics of each site, we are striving to provide a full range of recreational opportunity for the different levels of accessibility required to meet the needs of a diverse population. Diverse facilities encourage the safe use of all areas by anyone willing to take on a particular level of challenge and includes people of all abilities for participation.

This information was solicited from ranger district personnel, reviewed by forest supervisor's office personnel and when possible, verified by outside groups and concerned parties. It is possible that this edition may have errors or inaccuracies, and we encourage readers to contact individual ranger districts for updated information.

Partnerships

As the nation's population and available leisure time increases, demand for developed recreation areas has also increased. This increased demand, along with agency budget restraints, has created a backlog of recreation facility needs. The Forest Service is striving to meet the public's needs, which includes consideration for families with small children, senior citizens and people who are physically or developmentally challenged. Partnerships will play an important role in helping us face the challenge to seek creative approaches and new ideas in making the outdoors accessible to everyone.

The Forest Service is encouraging everyone to join us in a recreation initiative. We invite individuals, organizations, and private companies to join in partnership with us to provide improved recreation opportunities. Wheelchair accessible facilities are also enjoyed by parents with small children, senior citizens, people with temporary impairments due to injury or pregnancy, and people who experience permanent impairments such as reliance on walking aids, loss of sight, difficulty in standing or bending, limitations of stamina and other limitations. We encourage anyone who can offer ideas, labor, materials, or finances to contact us and join us in providing barrier-free facilities for those who might otherwise be restricted from participation in experiencing their national forests.

Welcome to the Southwest!

Strikingly different from most of the United States, the Southwestern Region of the Forest Service, U.S. Department of Agriculture, includes 11 national forests and three national grasslands in Arizona, New Mexico, western Oklahoma, and the Texas Panhandle. Its 21 million acres are typically the coolest, best-watered areas in this arid land.

The Southwest offers many recreation opportunities along with a longer vacation season than most states, making tourism a major economic force year-round. Millions of Americans enjoy camping, picnicking, scenic drives, hunting, fishing, hiking, climbing, skiing, water sports, windsurfing and traveling in their national forests.

Because you know your own capabilities better than anyone else, we present the following information about barrier-free facilities to help you decide for yourself whether or not an area will be useable.

User Fees And Reservations

Use fees are charged for many of the recreation sites listed on the following pages. Camping fees range from $4 to $12 for family sites and vary at group sites. Group permits are often required. Information about permits or fees is available at ranger stations and posted at recreation sites. All groups planning to occupy a forest area should check with the ranger district office.

Reservations can be made for some recreation sites through the reservation system. Areas available for reservation are indicated on the following pages. The toll-free number is 1-800-280-CAMP (2267). Toll-free service for hearing or speech impaired persons is available.

The Text Telephone (TT) number is 1-800-879-4496. Hours to call are Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. (PDT) and weekends from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Reservations can be made up to 120 days in advance for single family units and 360 days in advance for group sites. Handicap sites can be reserved when such facilities are available. Many sites are still operated on a first-come, first-served basis. However, visitors may contact the appropriate ranger district office to inquire about concessionaires or campground hosts who may allow reservations.

Concession Campgrounds

Several campgrounds are operated by private concessionaires under special-use permits. The Forest Service regulates concessionaires' operations so that they meet Forest Service policy and standards, including review and approval of fees and services. Golden Age, Golden Access, and Golden Eagle Passports are honored at all concessionaire operated campgrounds.

Federal Recreation Passport Program

Lifetime entrance passes to national parks, monuments, historic sites, recreation areas, and wildlife refuges are available to certain segments of the population. People over 62 years of age can purchase a Golden Age Passport for $10 which offers them a 50 percent discount on campground use fees. Golden Access Passports offer the same discount to disabled people but are provided free of charge. Either passport admits the permit holder and all accompanying passengers in a single, private, noncommercial vehicle. Golden Age and Golden Access Passports are available at Forest Service offices, national parks and monuments, and federal information centers. Applicants must apply in person and provide proof of age or disability by federal certificate, driver's license, or birth certificate as appropriate.

For $25 annually, persons under 62 can purchase Golden Eagle Passports, which allow them the same unlimited entry to federal fee areas that Golden Age and Golden Access Passports provide. Golden Eagle Passports can also be purchased at Forest Service offices, national parks and monuments, and federal information centers.

Know and Obey the Rules

Many visitors unknowingly "love the land to death." Please leave each place, as much as possible, without a trace of your visit. Once damaged, some plants and soil may not recover for 50-100 years. Rules and regulations are posted in recreation areas and are available at Forest Service offices. These regulations help protect our natural resources.

Also available are brochures and interpretive programs to help you better understand and enjoy your national forests. Such programs are available at five visitor centers and at most ranger stations.

Wilderness

The Southwestern National Forests include 52 wildernesses and 1 primitive area, totaling nearly 2.9 million acres (see maps of the individual forest for name of each). These areas are dedicated to preservation of our national heritage in its natural state. When visiting a wilderness, please use a no-trace ethic, leaving the wilderness setting the same as you found it when you arrived.

Wilderness recreation requires the assumption of responsibility for one's own safety and well-being as well as for the land itself. Pets are generally allowed in wilderness areas. However, they may be bothersome or dangerous to wildlife or other visitors. As such, pets must be kept under your control at all times. Motorized equipment, mechanical transport, resorts or commercial developments are not allowed in wilderness areas. Activities such as grazing, mining and building trails are sometimes authorized. Wheelchairs, used as a necessary medical appliance, are allowed in wilderness areas and are not included in the mechanical transport restriction. Commercial outfitting and guiding are permitted and allows many people with various levels of skill and ability to visit a wilderness area safely.

Wilderness areas provide many recreation opportunities for use and enjoyment by people who are willing to take on a particular level of challenge. Anyone able and willing, may travel over the many trails available. You can hunt, fish, climb, camp or relax amidst undisturbed beauty. Permits are not required to visit a wilderness area. However, the wildlife in wilderness areas remains the property of the state and is governed by appropriate state laws. Hunting and fishing permits must be obtained through the appropriate state procedures.

Maps

By mail or in person, you can purchase detailed maps of national forests, national grasslands and national forest wilderness areas from the appropriate national forest headquarters or the Forest Service's Southwestern Regional Office in Albuquerque, New Mexico. For a listing of available maps, including scale and cost, write: USDA Forest Service; Public Affairs Office; 517 Gold Avenue, SW; Albuquerque, NM 87102; (505) 842-3292.

Notes About Recreation Site Information

The following information contains narrative site descriptions, followed by a map and chart which lists recreation sites under their appropriate ranger districts. To eliminate redundancy of wheelchair accessibility information, the word "accessible" has been used to imply a wheelchair designed facility and unless otherwise noted, shall also mean suitable wheelchair access to the facility. Restrooms in most cases are pit toilets with no wash facilities. Those restrooms in offices and visitor centers will usually have flush toilets and wash facilities.

Numbers listed under camp and picnic columns indicate the number of "family units". A "family unit" accommodates a group of approximately 5 people. Numbers listed on sites marked as G (group camping), GP (group picnicking) or GPC (group camping and picnicking) indicate the number of group areas. Many group areas require reservations.

"Season of use" is an estimate of when the site will be open and services provided. Weather, road or site repair, agency funding, and many other factors can alter these dates and trigger closures. If you need definite dates, check with the appropriate Forest Service office.

If you're driving a large motor home, trailer or camper, heed road condition warnings and recommendations on maximum length for camp trailers. Forest Service campgrounds aren't normally equipped with utility hookups. Sanitary disposal stations and centralized water hydrants are provided at many campgrounds. Direct connections are permitted only at a few individual family units equipped for hookups.

Information identified in the accessibility portion of the chart indicates that the facility has been designed or retrofitted for wheelchair access or identified as meeting the need of a physically or sensory challenged customer. The accessibility key indicates three levels of path or route of travel to the designated facility, or the accessibility level of a walkway when the trail itself is the identified attraction.

Fully Accessible indicates paved asphalt or concrete areas with under 5% vertical slopes. This access level should meet minimum standards and be suitable for use by wheelchairs with limited mobility.

Limited Access indicates compacted dirt, stabilized gravel or paved areas with 5% to 10% vertical slopes. This access level should be functional for wheelchairs with proficient mobility.

Requires Assistance indicates over 10% slopes on paved surfaces; or 0% to 10% slopes on coarse gravel or non-compacted surfaces. This access level should be suitable for wheelchairs with an assistant, or with exuberant mobility proficiency.

Customer Comments

If you have suggestions which will help us accommodate the needs of people with disabilities, families with small children and senior citizens, we want to know. Standards for barrier-free construction have been used as a starting point for providing independent access. Yet, these standards may not address the finer points needing attention to make a facility fully accessible.

Facilities, services and interpretive programs continuously undergo changes and improvement and your comments will be of great assistance to us. Successful outdoor recreation facilities require cooperation and communication between the Forest Service and the customers. If while using this pamphlet, you encounter difficulties, errors of fact, or have suggestions, please write to: USDA Forest Service, Attention: Recreation; 517 Gold Avenue, SW; Albuquerque, NM 87102.

Coronado National Forest

1,780,196 acres—partly in New Mexico. Twelve widely scattered divisions—most of the mountain ranges in southeast Arizona. An hour's drive from desert to pine and fir forests. Santa Catalina Mountains Recreation Area with Rose Canyon Lake; Mt. Lemmon, southernmost ski area in continental U.S.; Sabino Canyon with shuttle, visitor center. Scenic drives include Hitchcock Highway up Mount Lemmon, Swift Trail, Ruby Road, U.S. 80, and Rucker Canyon Road. Resorts, dude ranches nearby. Season: low elevations, year-round; above 6,500', March-November, nights cool. Summer rains July-August. Nearby towns: Douglas, Nogales, Patagonia, Safford, Tombstone, Tucson, and Wilcox.

The Coronado National Forest is continuing to upgrade recreation facilities to offer a broad spectrum of opportunities for people with disabilities. The Coronado National Forest Recreation Staff recently completed facility surveys in response to the Americans with Disabilities Act. The information from these surveys will be used to develop the Forest Transition Plan and when complete will identify Forest-wide facility improvements.

Urban/Rural Settings

Generally highly developed areas, which allow an easy level of accessibility. Examples of these settings include: a visitor center and its displays, paved trails and developed fishing sites.

East Cochise Stronghold Campground - East Cochise Campground, located in a rugged canyon in the Dragoon Mountains, has designated parking, one accessible restroom, water, and eight campsites with hardened surfaces and specially designed tables and grills. Two trails have been constructed with varying degrees of accessibility. Cochise Interpretive Trail is a 500-foot trail of exposed aggregate with most slopes less than 8%. There are four interpretive nodes with 12 signs describing the prehistoric and historic use of the canyon. Stronghold Trail is a .04-mile trail (semi-primitive) that wanders among the yucca, cactus and rocks, providing a self-guided introduction to a number of desert plants and some principles of desert ecology.

Parker Canyon Lake Recreation Area - Located in the rolling Canelo Hills, Parker Canyon Lake accessible facilities include: designated parking, one (uncovered) fishing pier, a boat launch, concessionaire building and an accessible toilet. The route from the toilet to the pier is paved, but exceeds 8% slopes in some areas. Lakeshore Trail begins in the lower parking lot and consists of a 500-foot cement path. Located along the perimeter of the lake, this trail offers a variety of wildlife and bird watching opportunities. Lakeview Campground has one accessible campsite. There is designated parking with a paved access route to a retrofitted toilet and campsite. The campsite is compacted soil with an accessible table and a standard grill.

Madera Canyon Recreation Area - Madera Canyon, a well-known bird watching area, is located in the Santa Rita Mountains approximately one hour from Tucson. Several facilities within the Canyon are accessible. Whitehouse Picnic Ground has designated parking with an access route to a group ramada with accessible tables, grills and water. In addition to the group ramada, eight individual picnic units with accessible tables and four pedestal-type grills are also available. The beginning of a barrier-free nature trail is located on the west side of the Whitehouse Picnic Ground parking lot. This trail leads to an accessible toilet, then accesses a .5 mile barrier-free trail with spectacular scenic views and excellent bird watching. Madera Picnic Ground (on the left side of FR 70) has paved areas around the accessible picnic tables and standard grills. Access to the barrier-free toilet is via the paved road, but exceeds 8% slopes in some areas.

Columbine Visitor Information Center - Located in the Pinaleño Mountains, Columbine Visitor Center was so named from the flower-dotted meadows that flourish during the summer months. This renovated Civilian Conservation Corp building is fully accessible and has designated parking nearby. A ramp connects the parking lot with the entrance and inside is an accessible toilet and information desk. Inside exhibits provide information about the natural and cultural surroundings of the Pinaleño Mountains.

Upper Thumb Rock Picnic Ground - Located in the Pajarito Mountains, Upper Thumb Rock Picnic Ground offers wonderful views of Pena Blanca Lake. The facility has designated parking with an access route to the barrier-free toilet. One ramada with standard picnic tables is accessed by a wide paved trail with slopes of less than 8%.

Lower Thumb Rock Picnic Ground and the Pena Blanca Lakeshore Trail - Lower Thumb Rock is located within several hundred feet of Pena Blanca Lake. There is no designated parking; however, an access route (beginning in the parking lot) goes to three standard picnic tables and the Pena Blanca Lakeshore Trail. The trail crosses over a bridge and runs for 1,300 feet along the edge of the lake, ultimately accessing a floating fishing pier.

Catalina State Park - The spectacular northwest face of the Santa Catalina Mountains forms the backdrop for this 5,500-acre desert park located near Tucson. The park offers camping, picnicking, hiking and equestrian facilities. The campground has no designated campsite; however, most of the sites offer compacted soil with a standard table and pedestal-grill. There are no ramadas, but mature mesquite trees offer shade in many of the campsites. A hardened path accesses the barrier-free toilet from a parking area (next to the Campground Host). The day-use facility offers designated parking with a compacted soil access route to the barrier-free toilet and standard picnic tables and pedestal grills.

Sabino Canyon Recreation Area - Sabino Canyon is a lush oasis located on the edge of Tucson. Its natural beauty of soaring mountains, deep canyons and year-round creek attract over one million visitors a year. Sabino Canyon Visitor Center has designated parking with a paved route to the entrance. Inside the information center are exhibits, pamphlets and brochures describing the natural and cultural history of the area. A paved road is the main access into Sabino and Bear Canyons; however, a shuttle is the only motor vehicle (electric chairs excepted) authorized to travel in the area. The shuttle is equipped to transport three wheelchairs at a time. Persons with other mobility limitations should inquire whether the shuttle can serve their particular needs (reservations are required). Currently, there are no barrier-free facilities located in upper Sabino Canyon.

Reservations for Sabino Canyon Shuttle: Sabino Shuttle (602) 749-2327 from 9 a.m. till 4:30 p.m., 7 days a week.

Babat Duag - Vista Point - This vista point has designated, paved parking. A curb cut leads to a wide sidewalk in front of a rock retaining wall.

Roaded, Natural Settings

These areas are less developed than urban sites. Facilities might include: campsites with level surfaces and compacted gravel trails with increased slopes.

Reef Townsite Campground - Reef Townsite is an historic mining district located in the Huachuca Mountains. The campground is constructed on the original townsite that served the mines and mills. Two accessible campsites are available; both sites have hardened paths (one is 8%, the other is 5%) to a barrier-free toilet. Each site has a pedestal grill, wheelchair designated picnic table and hard surface tent pad.

Ramsey Vista Campground - Located at the end of Carr Canyon Road, Ramsey Vista Campground offers spectacular views of Ramsey Peak and the San Pedro River Valley. One designated accessible campsite is available, consisting of hard packed earth, an adapted picnic table, a pedestal-type grill and a hard surface tent pad. There is no designated access route to the barrier-free toilet, but it can be reached via the main road.

Shower's Point Group Campground - This campground is located in the Santa Catalina Mountains north of Tucson. Tall Ponderosa pines and an overlook of Palisade Canyon located at the campground's edge make this a popular spot with many groups. One group site provides a paved route (slope exceeds 10%) that connects tables, grills, and tent locations with an accessible toilet.

Reservations: Shower's Point Group Site • 1-800-280-2267.

Bear Canyon Picnic Areas - Located in the Santa Catalina Mountains north of Tucson, Lower and Middle Bear Picnic Areas are surrounded by towering pines and are a favorite spot for photographers capturing images of the nearby rock spires and cliff faces. Each site contains parking and a hardened access route that connects a single table and grill with an accessible toilet.

South Fork Picnic Ground - Located on the eastern side of the Chiricahua Mountains, South Fork Picnic Ground provides excellent bird watching opportunities. There is no designated parking, but there is a hardened path to the accessible toilet and one standard picnic table.

Rose Canyon Campground - Rose Canyon Campground is a popular recreation area to escape the summer heat. Located at milepost 18 on the left side of Hitchcock Highway, the accessible facilities are varied. One group day-use area (ramada #1) has a paved path from the designated parking to the ramada. A steep path (slopes exceed 10%) has been constructed to the water and a usable toilet. The site has both regular and modified tables. The modified tables have one free side and one side with a bench. The grills are on pedestals and there is a fireplace in the ramada. Reservations are required. One campsite has been upgraded to include an accessible picnic table and a hardened campsite. A paved access route connects designated parking with the campsite, water and a usable toilet. A new barrier-free toilet is located at the end of the road near the lake.

Reservations: Rose Canyon Group Site • 1-800-280-2267.

Semi-Primitive

Accessibility expectations for these areas are difficult. Examples include: undeveloped campsites with no facilities and narrow, steep trails.

West Turkey Creek Campground - Located on the western side of the Chiricahua Mountains, the campground has no designated parking or camping facilities. Parking areas are not level and consist of compacted native soil. There are three non-pedestal grills and two standard picnic tables. There is an accessible toilet with a small ramp (the slope of the ramp exceeds 20%).

Sycamore Campground - Located one mile north of West Turkey Creek, the campground is bisected by West Turkey Creek into two camping areas. There are four campsites with standard picnic tables and fire grates. There is an accessible toilet, with a small ramp.

Primitive

In this level, the natural environment is the primary focus. This is the most difficult level of accessibility and people access the areas by various methods, i.e. foot and horseback.

Redington Pass Area (Santa Catalina Mountains - Rincon Mountains)

- Redington Pass Area accommodates many dispersed recreation activities including off-highway vehicle (OHV) use. Currently, there are numerous dirt parking areas along Redington Pass Road, providing staging areas for 60 miles of 4-wheel drive roads accessing scenic, remote areas between the Santa Catalina and Rincon Mountains. Access to these areas provides spectacular views of the Tucson Basin, as well as bird and wildlife viewing opportunities.

East Santa Rita Mountains Area - The Santa Rita Mountains are located south of Tucson and north of Nogales—an area of scenic beauty, historical significance, and numerous dispersed recreation opportunities. Dirt parking lots are located throughout the area providing for OHV unloading or horse trailer parking and access to many trails. The area currently has no developed facilities though many OHV developed trailheads are being planned.

Providencia - Guajolote Area - The Patagonia Mountains are located northeast of Nogales and contain numerous historic mining camps, ghost towns, and dispersed recreation opportunities. The area currently has no developed facilities. Several dirt parking areas provide for OHV unloading or horse trailer parking and access to many trails and roads throughout the area.

Mt. Graham Recreation Area - The Pinaleno Mountains are located near Safford and provide for a variety of dispersed recreation opportunities. Several facilities include corrals and horse trailer parking and offer access to more remote trails and roads that offer a primitive experience. None of the facilities contain hardened access routes. Round the Mountain Picnic Area contains corrals, tables and toilets. Cunningham Camp contains several camp sites with grills and tent pad sites (no tables) and public horse corrals. Clark Peak Trailhead offers public horse corrals and toilet facilities.

Site Descriptions

Kaibab Lake - Campground - Two paved campsites with a paved path to a restroom accessible to most users. The threshold to the restroom is raised one inch, but should pose little difficulty to most users. The picnic tables and firerings are not accessibly designed. The general parking area is gravel but the 2 paved sites are only a few feet from the parking area. Drinking water would be difficult to access by wheelchair but it is easy to operate.

Cataract Lake - Campground & Boating - Gravel road to limited access restroom. Paved road access to boat ramp and paved central parking area. Gravel roads and paths to campgrounds (no paved sites). Water is not accessibly designed.

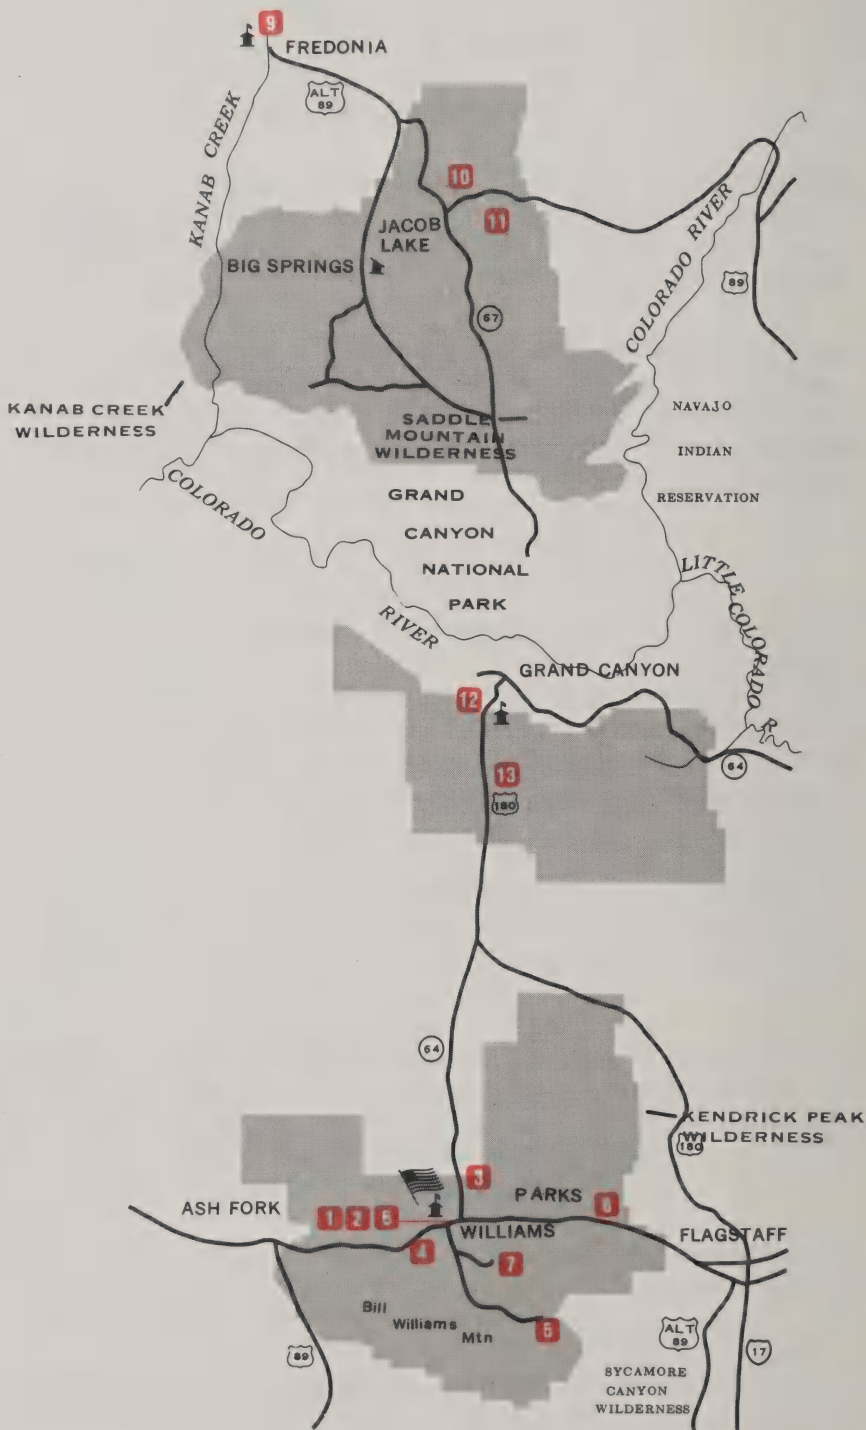

Parks Rest Area - Trail - State site within the forest. Restrooms have paved paths, and one stall has hand rails, but the door is not large enough to allow wheelchair access. All the picnic sites, about 40, have paved paths to them and the tables are standard design. There is a 1/4 mile, paved nature trail with interpretive signs.

Kaibab Plateau - Visitor Center - Parking lot grade slightly higher than 5%, so limited accessibility; two parking spaces. Restrooms, information desk and drinking water, fully accessible.

Jacob Lake Group - Campground - Two paved campsites, each with pull-in, paved parking. One site is next to the restroom; but restrooms require assistance. They have accessible picnic tables and grills. Drinking water is 100 feet away from the campsite on a paved path. It is a hand pump and one hand is needed to operate it. Accessible path to amphitheater.

Ten X - Campground - One paved campsite with a hard-packed path to a restroom that does not have the proper riser height for wheelchair access. The picnic table, cooking pit and water are not accessibly designed. There is a paved road around the campground and the other sites have gravel access.
